In discussing the governor's proclamation regarding the sun dance, Manager Enright of the Northern Montana Racing sociation said: "I have not seen as yet, the governor's official document, but I am satisfied that matters have been misrepresented to him. Whether the sun dance comes off or not, the races will be held; the entries are all filled and the purses will be paid to the winners as advertised. The horses are all in prime condition, the race track is superb, and we intended to give the Montana editors a series of races which will not be surpassed in the ensuing circuit races.'

THEY'RE OFF.

GREAT FALLS, June 6 .- Hogan's army with the Seattle recruits, to the number of 441 men, left Benton at 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday on 10 large flatboats and four skiffs for Washington.

The night before embarking the army was drawn up before the Grand Union hotel, where the boys were addressed by Attorney Murphy, who wound up his talk with an appeal for tobacco for the men. One hundred pounds of the weed were given the wayfarers.

The boats, among them the "Butte,"
"Livingston," "Fort Benton" and "Fort Benton" others, were gaudily decorated with flags and bunting contributed by the Benton people. One boat 10 by 48 feet will be used for a cooking boat and has a large brick oven built upon the floor. With the food contributed by the different cities the Hoganites had nearly two carloads of provisions. When the boats pulled out into the river the "jolly tars" gave three ringing cheers for Benton and her people and this was echoed back by a hearty cheer from the residents of the old town, who wish the voyagers health and a suc-cessful trip down "Old Muddy."

BENTON ALARMED.

The Idle Men Headed That Way Are Becoming Too Numerous.

GREAT FALLS, June 7.—The people of Fort Benton-known as among the most hospitable, kind hearted and generous in the West-are growing just a trifle nerv-ous over the horde of men headed in that direction. In discussing the subject the River Press says:

"It is imperative that some action be taken for the protection of the rights and property of Fort Benton's citizens during the coming summer against the ravages of the element which is almost sure to congregate here, now that 'the trail is

"It is not of the present crowd of Montana Coxeyites that complaint is made. They have behaved like gentlemen, have worked industriously, and have molested nobody. But now that the Missouri river route, via Fort Benton, has been advertised to the Northwest, and as the crime against silver is daily throwing out of work more and more miners, it is almost a surety that during the remaining summer months thousands of men will flock to Fort Benton to seek river transportapeople congregate here they will be followed by a gang of thugs and vagrants who will try to impose upon our people, and be a source of constant annoyance. They will look to the citizens of Fort Benton to give them assistance, and though our people are generous to a fault, they cannot make the sacrifice of supplying the wants of all who flock this way. Hence, we believe steps should be taken to protect our citizens against the incoming class who are sure to demand of our people more than they can give."

FROM JUDGE COLMAN.

The Distinguished Jurist Has Some Ad vice for Young Men. BUTTE, June 6.-The following is the latest from the pen of Judge Colman: Come, young man, you who are going to vote for the first time this fall, let us take a look at the political field together. Have you considered yet how you shall vote? Perhaps your father is a republican or a democrat; most likely he is. Small chance that he is a populist, be cause he is an old man, and the populist is a young man's party. Now don't you vote just because your father votes that way; and don't you vote with the demo crats or republicans even if your father does vote that way. Your father is a pretty good old man and has a pretty sound judgment-in many things but not all. He is but human-and all men's judgments are unconsciously warped and twisted by early training. In politics, take no man's word, because there, more than in any other respect opinions are in most cases swayed by prejudice instead of the plainest reason See how many men there are who will shout themselves hoarse for the democratic party, as though their lives de pended upon it, and yet, in their quiete moments, will argue learnedly in behalf of a high protective tariff. And how republicans will hurrah for the grand old party, and then tell you that they really believe that in respect and that the democrats or this populists are much sounder; and, on election day vote against their convic-tions, but with their prejudice; with their prejudice, which is nothing but a name. You are too young to be in bondage to prejudice against your own welfare.

The conditions under which you live are different from those that confronted the older members of the community when they were of your age. There is no reason why you should grow enthusiastic about issues of 39 years ago and more; issues that have been settled long ago. Some old gray-bearded veteran that saw service at Gettysburg may be pardoned for thinking that this is the year 1864, instead of 1894; but there is no excuse for you. I do not wish to detract from the glory justly due either of the old parties for the good they have done, and it is not my purpose now to attempt a detailed arraignment for the wrongs of which they have been guilty, for that would take too much time. But I that would take too much time. But I want to impress upon you that this is a very different country from what it was in 150, and that no party should be allowed to easy to ad laws or suffer unjust ones to the total the past. In 1860, we did not have as many rich men as we have now. There were still portions of our country that offered a decent livelihood to everybody who was willing to work; it had not then been fenced in and the poor man fenced out, so completely that would take too much time. But I

or man fenced out, so completely what are the parties that are bidding for your vote? First, there are the two "great" parties, the democratic and republican. The former has the same name as the party that boasted of Jeffersonian simplicity and equal rights; and the latter has the same name as the party that carried on the liberation of the blacks from chattel slavery. But although the names are the same, the parties are very different.

What, according to their conception, are the great issues before the people? The tariff; and they both favor a tariff, although one wants it for revenue and the other for alleged protection to American industries; and the tariffs they advocate are about the same, in proof of which I will be the tariffs they are the tariffs they are the tariffs they are the the unimportant charges the cite you to the unimportant changes the present democratic congress is proposing in the rates fixed by the republicans. Then each has a plank in its platform on the silver question. These planks are carefully framed and much discussed before details on the pressures the reconstruction. carefully framed and much discussed before adoption; not the measures they represent, but the verbage that is used, which must be sufficiently ambiguous and meaningless to cover all sides. Of the other planks it is unnecessary to speak; they don't advocate anything and are most properly described as sop. We may best know these parties by what they have done. One is in power in this land so full of natural advantages, while Coxey's armies are marching to the national capital to petition for justice; and the other is the one that put the country into the condition that made Coxey necessary.

There is another party; the people's party. It is a new party, and it is not so very long ago since the plutocrats spoke of it in terms of ridicule. But they have stopped laughing. The "cranks" are being treated with some respect. Champions of justice are always called cranks while they are weak; but the populists party has grown strong and will continue to grow and be powerful long after the other parties have ceased to exist. If you are rich, or expect to become so through the death of a wealthy uncle, don't join the populist party, because you don't need it. But if you are poor, and your spirit rebels against the grasping greed of great corporations and millionaires, cast your lot with the populist party. Confide in it, and you will not confide in vain. C. M. Colman.

RUN DOWN BY A STREET CAR. Miraculous Escape of Charles Erb's Little Daughter From Death. BUTTE, June 6.-A little 3-year-old daughter of Charles Erb of No. 422 Hopkins street was run down by an electric car on the South Butte line about 3 o'clock this afternoon, but strange to say the little one escaped death and is only slightly injured.

The child was playing in front of Johnston & Borthwick's store, on South Arizona street, and just as the car got almost opposite to her she started to run across he track in front of it. Motorman O. Y. Rheim rang the bell and yelled at her, but she paid no attention to him, and he had only time to reverse the current when the car struck her.

She was just inside the track and was struck by the step and knocked down directly in front of it. Fortunately the car was supplied with "spreaders," which are something of the form of a pilot on a ocomotive, and she was rolled to one side Just as she was over the rail, her dress caught on the machinery and she was rolled around until her head became rolled around until her head became wedged between the spreaders and the wheel. Fortunately her dress held securely and it was this, together with the fact that the wheels were in the backward motion, that saved her life.

She was dragged along in her perilous position for about 15 feet before the car could be stopped. When she was taken out she was fully conscious and was quickly carried home. Manager Wharton was notifled and he at once dispatched Dr. Davis to the house.

was notified and he at once dispatched Dr. Davis to the house.

The girl's forehead was badly scratched up, where the wheel had rubbed against it, but aside from these cuts and a few other scratches and bruises, the doctor found her comparatively uninjured. It is received that they also may have sustained found her comparatively uninjured. It is possible that she may have sustained some internal injuries, but such is not believed to be the case. The car was running slow or her injuries would have been a great deal more serious. Doctors Murray and Davis both visited the child this evening and found her in the highest fever, but this was expected. The lever is due, to a great extent, to the heavy fever, but this was expected. The fever is due, to a great extent, to the heavy electric shock that she received while sliding along between the rail and the wheel. Manager Wharton visited the house after the accident and comforted the little girl's feelings with a $5 gold piece. The car was in charge of Conductor Joseph Burns, but no blame can possibly be attached to either he or the motorman.
